THE BAYONET CHARGE

Not a sound, not a breath,
All as still as death.
As we stand on the steep in our bayonet's shrine;
All is tumult below—
Surging friend, surging foe:
But not a hair's breadth moves our adamant line—
Waiting so grimly.

The battle-smoke lifts
From the valley, and drifts
Round the hill where we stand, like a pall for the world;
And a glimpse now and then
Shows the billows of men,
In whose black boiling surge we are soon to be hurled,
Redly and dimly.

There's the word! Ready all!
See the serried points fall—
The grim horizontal so bright and so bare!
Then the other word—Ha!
We are moving! Huzza!
We snuff the burnt powder, we plunge in the glare,
Rushing to glory!

Down the hill, up the glen,
O'er the bodies of men,
Then on, with a cheer, to the roaring redoubt!
Why stumble so, Ned?
No answer—He's dead!
And there's Dutch Peter down, with his life leaping out,
Crimson and gory!

On! On! Do not think
Of the falling, but drink
Of the mad, living cataract-torrent of war!
On! On! let them feel
The cold vengeance of steel!
Catch the Captain—he's hit! 'Tis a scratch—nothing more!
Forward forever!

Huzza! Here's the trench!
In and out of it! Wrench
From the jaws of the cannon the guerdon of Fame!
Charge! charge! with a yell,
Like the shriek of a shell—
O'er the abattis, on through the curtain of flame!
Back again? Never!

The rampart! 'Tis crossed—
It is ours! It is lost!
No—another dash now and the glacis is won!
Huzza! What a dust!
Hew them down! Cut and thrust!
A T-i-g-a-r! brave lads, for the red work is done—
Victory! victory!

There's a lull in the fight,
In the glad morning light,
I stand on the works, looking back there with pain,
Where the death-dew of war
Stains the daisy's white star,
And God's broken images scatter the plain,
Hush! Do not speak to me!

THE SILENT WITNESS.

FROM A LAWYER'S DIARY.

I had spent some years in the west in the practice of my profession, and was on a visit to my friends in New England. Among those who came first on my list of friendship, was Fred. Elliott, and I arranged to visit him as soon as I could. Fred. and I had grown up together as boys; we had entered college together, and graduated together; and when I commenced the practice of law, he entered his uncle's store in the capacity of book-keeping, with a good promise ahead. And there was another between us—a near and dear one to us, who were both orphans, and who had few relatives living. Fred. had married my own cousin, sweet Hattie Keene. He married her since I went away, though the event had been upon the docket a long time before. And thus I was to meet two of my dearest friends beneath the same roof.

It was just before dusk when the carriage left me at the house which had been pointed out as the one occupied by my friend, and which I at once recognized as the former home of old Timothy Elliott, the uncle of whom I have spoken. My summons was answered by a light, quick step on the hall floor; and when the door was opened I recognized the fair, fond features of my dearly remembered cousin. She was five years older than when I saw her last, and grown to be a little more womanly, and a little more sedate. In fact, she had put on the holiest of characters—that of a mother. The beauty, the life, the animation, the smiles of other years had not gone; but they were elevated with, softened by, and blended into, that noble character. At first she did not know me, but when I called her Hattie, as I used to in the olden times, she caught me by the hand, and in a moment more her soft, white arms were around my neck. She was a sister to me in heart and soul, and with a sister's love she greeted me.

We went into the parlor, where an astral lamp was already burning upon the centre table, and where a fire was reflecting a genial warmth from a polished grate—for it was autumn and the evenings were quite cool. Upon a chair, near by the table, sat a little boy of some three years, playing with the richly ornamented bridle of a rocking horse; while upon the carpet was a gleesome child, not yet able to walk with safety, engaged in tumbling a large marten muff. And these were Hattie's children—two as bright and beautiful beings as ever made music in an earthly home. She told them that I was Uncle Enoch. She had neither sister nor brother, so I was forced to be an uncle to her children.

Where had I been? What had I been doing? How had I been? Was I married? Did I ever mean to be? and a hundred more questions of like character were showered upon me before I had time to ask any in return. By-and-by Fred. came in. There was a cloud upon his face when he entered the room. I saw it very plainly; but his wife hurried to his side, kissed him, and whispered in his ear, and in a moment he brightened up; and when he greeted me, and held my hand and patted me upon the shoulder, he appeared the same warm and genial spirit as of the olden time.

At the tea table he asked after my fortunes in the distant home I had sought; and when I told him I had succeeded beyond my most sanguine expectations, and that material wealth was fast accumulating for me, he was not only pleasant, but intimated that such business and such prospects would suit him.

I laughed outright at what I considered the absurdity of this last idea. It would do very well, I told him, for a poor fellow, with only his two hands to help him, to get off into the western wilds; but for one like him, with an independent fortune at his command, to think of such a thing was ridiculous. He smiled as I spoke, and turned the subject of conversation.

Within an hour after we adjourned to the parlor, I was sure something had gone wrong with my friend. He tried to be cheerful, to talk of our old pranks, and to laugh and joke as in the days of our youth; and as a last resort, endeavored to arouse himself by caressing his sweet children. But it would not do—I had seen too much. Hattie succeeded much better than he did; yet as the evening wore on, I could see there was a heavy load upon her heart as well.

At length the children were abed, and the mother soon followed them. I plainly heard her sob as she left the room, and a smothered groan, which could not escape me, burst from her husband's bosom. Fred poked up the coals, and took two or three turns across the floor, after which he returned and sat down near me.

"Enoch," he said, his face all wrapped in gloom, "perhaps you think I act strangely."

"I think something is the matter with you," I returned. "Something must have gone wrong."

"You are right. Something has gone wrong. In fact," he added, as a shudder crept over his frame, "a storm has burst upon me which is to ruin me."

He spoke this so solemnly and so steadily that I knew there must be some deep meaning in it; and I asked him if he could tell me his trouble. Of course he would tell me. He was anxious to tell me, for I was not only one of his dearest friends, but I was a lawyer and might possibly assist him.

"You know," said he, "that I went into business with my uncle Timothy. When I was married he made me come and live in this house; he put the whole establishment into our hands, and he then boarded with us. I had no money—not a dollar, but when I served him one year as book-keeper, he gave me a good share in the business. Three years ago he died, leaving me an estate of about sixty thousand dollars.

"There was no will left, or, at least such was supposed to be the case: and it all came to me, as I was the only blood relative living.—Uncle Timothy had one brother and one sister. He married when quite young, but his wife died without issue. His sister married a man named Isaac Staffer, who had one child by a former wife, but he never had any children by my aunt. He died at the end of two years, leaving her no means, and she found a home with a brother, taking her step-son with her. In time she died, and the boy was left in my uncle's charge until he was twenty-one.—So much for the sister. The brother married, and had one child, and that child was myself. My father died when I was a mere child, and my mother died before I was graduated. So you see, I was the only representative of Uncle Timothy's blood."

"Certainly," I said, "and of course the whole property fell to you."

"Yes," he replied, "and it was given to me, and I took possession, and opened a flourishing business. Upon the strength thereof, I have entered society, and responsible offices have been put upon me."

"Well," said I, as my friend paused again, "what has happened to disturb all this?"

"I'll tell you," he returned, starting from a moody reverie into which he had fallen. "You know that my father and Uncle Timothy once had a serious falling out."

"Yes," I told him, "I have some recollection of it; but that was a great many years ago. We were boys then."

"Ay—it was near twenty years ago," said Fred; but I remember it very well, for I recollect how badly it made mother feel. The estrangement lasted for some years; and during that time the bitterness was very strong. My uncle declared that he would have nothing more to do with his brother; and under the influence of this feeling he made a will conveying the great bulk of his property to Staffer, the son of his sister's husband. You remember that, don't you?"

"Yes," I said. And I did remember it very well, for it made considerable talk at the time; and more so, because Staffer, who had married Timothy Elliott's sister, had not been considered much of a man, and it was not generally supposed that the boy, whom he had left upon the care of his wife's relatives, gave any promise of a valuable life.

"And," continued Fred, "you probably recollect when my father was very sick, Uncle Timothy came to him and the quarrel was thrown away, and from that time, while my father lived, their brotherly love was warm and generous.

"Yes, I know all that."

"Well, at that time my uncle spoke of the will he had made, and said he would destroy it, and I believe he did. I know it as well as I know anything which I did not see with my own eyes. Before my uncle died he told me that he should make no will, for there was no need of it. He said I was the only lawful heir, and that was enough. My uncle died and I came into possession of the property; and I have enjoyed it, and have tried to do good with it; and I have added something to the original fortune, for I have been careful and prudent. In a dark hour, however, a storm has burst upon me. It seemed only a cloud at first, but it proved a fearful one. John Staffer has returned.—He went away about ten years ago—went away because my uncle would not give him a home any longer—and has now come and has laid claim on my property. He claims the whole of it!"

"But how?" I asked, as my friend stopped to take breath.

"You remember Stephen Akers, the old lawyer?" said Fred.

"Ay," I replied, "I know him very well. He has been out west and done some business there; but he can't do more where he is known, for he proved himself a villian."

"Ha! do you know it?"

"Yes; but what has that to do with you now?"

"I'll tell you. In the first place, he used to do business here, and my uncle employed him some."

"I remember that."

"And it was he who made that will for my uncle."

"Yes, I recollect it now."

"Well," continued Fred, "this old villain of a lawyer came back here about six months ago, and ere long he and John Staffer had their heads together. In a little while Staffer came and laid claim to my uncle's property; and when asked what he meant, he produced a paper which appeared to be the last will and testament of Mr. Timothy Elliott. And Stephen Akers swears that this is the same will which my uncle made many years ago, and that it has been in his charge ever since. He says that when he went away to the western country he overlooked it among his papers, and took it along with him. He furthermore declares that he received many letters from Mr. Elliott, in which he requested him to be careful of the will, and keep it so that it could be brought to light in case of need."

"Of course," said I, "this must be a fraudulent one."

"Most certainly it is," returned Fred. "And yet it has been admitted to probate, and the judge has accepted it. I have appealed, and it goes to the Superior Court, and, moreover, the trial comes off to-morrow. For myself, Enoch,—if I were alone in the world,—I would care little, for I could put forth my energies anew; but for my wife and children, oh! it is hard!"

He buried his face in his hands, and wept aloud; but in a little while he became calm again, and I questioned him as I saw fit. Another witness to the will besides Stephen Akers was living, and he had testified that he believed the instrument now produced was the one to which he put his name. In short, the case looked dark enough, and I dared not give my friend much hope. Yet I promised to think of the matter, and be present with him at the trial.

On the following morning I got away as soon as possible, for I could not bear to hear Hattie's grief; but I promised to come back again, and as I held her hand at the door, told her to keep up a good heart.

An uncle of mine, named Ansel Forbes, a brother of my mother, was in town on business, and I went to see him. He was a paper manufacturer, and worth a handsome property. I found him at the hotel, and passed a happy hour with him; for I was his pet in boyhood, and it was by his generous bounty that I went through college. I told him about the trial which was to come off, and he said he meant to be present if he could. He had been well acquainted with Timothy Elliott, and he was firmly convinced that the only will which Elliott had ever made had been destroyed.

When the hour of trial arrived it was announced that I should assist in the case. I took my seat with the counsel already engaged. As the trial went on it certainly did look dark enough for my friend. Stephen Akers, a dark browed, foxy looking man, with hair of grizzled red, which stood out like a hedgehog's quills upon his head—swore that this will was the will which he, as Timothy Elliott's attorney, had made eighteen years before, and that it had been in his possession ever since, until he had lodged it in the probate office. And he also swore to the receipt of letters from Elliott, bidding him keep it safe. There was no getting around his testimony—it was plain and direct, and we could not break through it.

An old man named Jackson, who had been one of the witnesses of the old will, testified that he believed the instrument now before him was the one to which he had put his hand. He could say that this was his own signature. He was an honest old fellow, and admitted that he had always supposed the will had been destroyed.

For our client we had nothing of clear, plain facts to help us. We any amount of impressions and opinions in our favor. It had been the impression of all Timothy Elliott's intimate friends that the will which he had made had been destroyed.—He had talked to them in that way. And yet no one of them could swear that they had ever heard him say, directly, that such was the fact. In short, though the belief in the destruction of that will was so general and so firm, yet we could not present to the jury a single fact to sustain us in the decision.

Had the counsel for the appellant any more testimony to produce?

Fred placed his hand, trembling like an aspen, upon my arm, and whispered:—

"Oh, my soul! I am lost!"

He was pale as death, and his sufferings intense. As the case now stood, I could have no hope. Whatever may have been the opinion of the court and jury upon the right and justice of the thing, there could have been but one opinion upon the law and fact.

Were the counsel for the appellant ready to rest the case?

I held the will in my hand. I believed it to be a forgery. I believed the only will which Timothy Elliott ever made had been destroyed, and that Akers, in consideration of a share in the spoils, had, from the old draft in his hands, forged this instrument, counterfeiting even Jackson's signature so nicely that the simple old man could not disown it. I was about to give the instrument up, and my last faint hope with it, when a dim mark in one corner of the sheet caught my eye. It was a stamp—an impression on the paper—not so large as the point of a finger's end, but I bent my head for a moment to call to mind something of the past.

"What is it?" asked Fred, who had noticed my emotion.

I told him to wait, and then arose and looked around the court room. Was my uncle there? Yes, I saw him close by me. I asked that Stephen Akres might be called to the stand again. The wretch saw that I was excited, and he trembled a little when he started to answer to the call, though he was firm enough when he had gained the stand.

"Mr. Akers," said I, controlling myself as I possibly could, "you made this will."

"Timothy Elliott made it," he replied; "I merely wrote it down for him as he dictated."

"This will is dated," said I, looking at its sign and seal, "October third, eighteen years ago this very month."

"Certainly," replied Akers, "that is just when it was made."

"And you swear that this is the identical instrument?"

"I do."

"And you swear that Timothy Elliott set his hand and seal upon this paper at the time herein mentioned?"

"I do."

I looked the witness in the eye.—He must have read in that look something of my thoughts, for his countenance changed and his knees actually shook beneath him.

I told him I had done with him.

Then I asked that Ansel Forbes might be called to the stand.

What did I want with him? And my uncle was also anxious to know why he was called upon, for he was well known, and stood as high as the judge himself.

"Mr. Forbes," said I, "you are a manufacturer of paper?"

He said he was.

"How long have you been engaged in the business?

He thought a moment, and then replied, "I entered the business in eighteen hundred and thirty-one; so I have been in it just ten years."

"Now sir." said I, handing him the instrument which I held, "will you tell me, will you tell the jury, when that paper was made?"

He took it, and the moment his eye rested upon it he started. He gazed upon the corner, and then, in a bursting, amazed tone, he cried—

"I made it myself!"

"When?" I demanded.

"It could not have been over nine years ago, for here is my mark—my name—upon it, as I alone have stamped paper in this country!"

He then showed to the court and to the jury the mark which he had detected. It was plain enough now—a little oval impression, with the name "A Forbes" embossed in it.—It was defaced and soiled, but not obliterated.

Stephen Akers was trying to make his way from the court-room, but the deputy brought him back.

Two wholesale dealers were summoned, and when they examined the paper they at once recognized it as Ansel Forbes's manufacture.—They knew it—there could be no question.

And thus, almost miraculously, was the whole current of the affair changed. We gave the case in, and in a very few minutes we had the verdict.

That evening Hattie hung about my neck, and blessed and thanked me until I fairly cried. And Fred, when he tried to speak of what had passed, at once broke down under the weight of joy and gratitude that was upon him. He was safe, his fortune was safe; and his wife and little ones were still blessed.

Some asked me how I happened to detect that silent witness away up in the corner of that paper. I answered that my uncle gave me half a dozen reams of that paper when he commenced making it, and I had been using it ever since, so that the stamp was very familiar to me. The forger had selected for his wicked purpose a sheet of respectable age; but it had not proved quite old enough to answer the date he had just put upon it.

Master John Staffer got off to sea again; but Stephen Akers found his way to the State Prison, where for a term of years, he was forcibly restrained from cheating his fellowmen.

PRACTICAL JOKES PLAYED BY A HORSE.—Tho' many curious tricks and mischievous but harmless capers have been played by horses within our knowledge, yet it is hard to give credence to the following anecdote from an English paper:

"There was, some years ago, a very fine horse in the possession of Henry Meux & Co., the eminent brewers. It was used as a dray horse, but was so tractable that it was left sometimes without restraint, to walk about the yard and return to the stable, according to its fancy. In the yard there were also a few pigs of a peculiar breed, fed on grain, and to these pigs the horse had evidently an insuperable objection. There was a deep trough in the yard holding water for the horses, where this horse went often, taking his mouth full near it on the ground, and when the young swine approached it (for the old ones kept aloof,) he would seize one of them by the tail, pop him into the trough, and then caper about the yard, seemingly delighted with the frolic. The noise of the pig soon brought the men to his assistance, who knew from experience what was the matter, while the horse indulged in all sorts of antics to show his glee, and then returned quietly to his stable.

A REMARKABLE CASE.—A very remarkable case is that of a soldier in a hospital in Philadelphia, who, it is said, has not slept a moment for over fourteen years. He says that sleep forsook him in the summer of 1850, and he has never felt even drowsy since that time. He has been two years in our army, holding the position of Orderly Sergeant, and has seen hard service, and taken part in several raids, without affecting his remarkable wakefulness. On one occasion a number of scientific gentlemen investigated his case, and watched him constantly for forty-two days and nights without detecting a single doze, or discovering the cause of the phenomenon. The man goes to bed when fatigued, simply for physical rest. He has been ill with rheumatism, but is now nearly well.

War News.

The country was considerably startled, on Monday last, by the announcement that Sheridan had attacked Early, near Waynesboro, defeated him and captured 1800 prisoners. The news was startling from the fact that Sheridan was not known to be moving. The first reports were discredited, but later news confirms the defeat of Early and the capture of 40 officers, 1300 men and 100 wagons. Waynesboro is at the west base of the Blue Ridge, between Staunton and Charlottsville, and about 70 miles from Lynchburg.

In speaking of the defeat of Early, a correspondent of the New York Herald says: Early was found near Waynesboro, on a range of hills, with five pieces of artillery in position. Gen. Custer dismounted two regiments as skirmishers. On the rear of either side of the road were two solid regiments. The movement upon the enemy's works were made at once. The rebels fired one volley, and then fled like sheep. Their attempt to escape was fruitless, as Custer closed his lines upon them and surrounded nearly the entire force. General Early did not attempt to rally his men, but rode off on a fleet horse, attended by an orderly. The victory was almost a bloodless one, as we only lost ten or twelve killed and wounded.

Sherman is reported to have formed a junction with Gen. Schofield. The rebels say Gen. Sherman has about 70,000 men, and it is estimated that Schofield has 40,000.

Rebel prisoners report a heavy Union force advancing from East Tennessee on Lynchburg, of the capture of which place we have unconfirmed rumors.

In order to shut up the back door retreat from Richmond by way of Tennessee, Gen. Thomas is reported to be concentrating a force at Knoxville and Chattanooga.

HOW THIN STEEL CAN BE ROLLED.—Several interesting communications on the subject of thin rolled iron having been published, the Birmingham Post gives an account of an experiment in rolling steel. It seems to us that in this case the experiment was continued beyond the limits of endurance, for the texture was destroyed in the operation.

To the lively competition in iron rolling, exercised by the receipt of an iron letter from Pennsylvania, we have now to add an interesting note on the degree of thinness to which steel can be rolled. The samples we have seen were rolled at Mr. Gilbert's works, and have been sent to Messrs. Holtzapffel & Co., to be measured by their micrometer gage. Messrs. Holtzapffel & Co. say: "We have carefully measured three sheets of steel, and find the average thickness to be one eighteen-hundredth part of the English standard inch. The thinnest paper we have been able to purchase at the stationers' shops measures one twelve-hundredth part of an inch; those samples of cast rolled steel show very small holes and have a porous surface, but still are perfectly smooth and easy to write on, and the porosity can only be seen when they are held up to a good light. It is believed that steel may be rolled still finer when other experiments are made."

☞It is estimated that the average daily product of oil is about 60,000 barrels. Of this at least 40,000 barrels come from Pennsylvania. A tax of two cents per gallon upon this product, says the Erie Dispatch, would give the State an annual revenue of $40,000,000, or enough to pay off the public debt and its interest in four years. If there is any one who thinks such a tax would be exhorbitant or oppressive, let him compare it with that upon alcohol, the principal ingredient in the manufacture of all burning fluids except kerosene.

☞Mr. Jeremiah McCracken, segar maker, of Lancaster, Pa., met with a horrible death on Thursday evening last. He had accompanied his brother-in-law to the depot, and stepped on the train to bid him good-bye, when the train began to move, and Mr. McCracken, on stepping off, slipped and fell, and was dragged under the wheels. His right arm was completely crushed and his head almost severed from his body. He leaves a wife and six children.

☞A collision occurred on the Philadelphia and Trenton Railroad, on Tuesday morning, by which five persons were instantly killed and a large number injured. Four of the killed were paroled Union prisoners just discharged from Southern dungeons and on their way home on furlough.

☞Henry Thompson, son of A. Thompson, Esq., of Bidlesville, while on his way last week to join his regiment in the west, was seized with hydrophobia, at Columbus, O., which resulted in his death. Some months ago he was bitten by a small dog.

☞Gen. Grant writes that "if General Sherman's success continues a few days longer, the country can safely indulge in exultation." In a private letter from the Lieutenant-General, he expressed his opinion that peace is not far distant.

☞Cardinal Wiseman, the most prominent champion of the Catholic faith in England, and one of the most influential of all the Catholic hierarchy, is dead.

The Second Inauguration of Abraham Lincoln.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Such a wet, dirty morning as this of the second inauguration-day of Abraham Lincoln as President of the United States hardly ever dawned upon Washington. Rain had been falling all yesterday and last night, making the proverbially filthy streets of the political metropolis filthier and more unpleasant than ever.

It continued to rain until about nine o'clock this morning, when it ceased; but the clouds still hung heavily, and the atmosphere looked and felt watery. Notwithstanding all this, Pennsylvania avenue soon began to fill up with people, and the windows and porticoes of all the houses were arranged for the accommodation of those who wished to get a view of the Presidential procession from the White House to the Capitol. Many flags were out, though they hung wet and droopingly.

The hopes of a clearing up were rudely dispelled about eleven o'clock, for the rain began to pour down again, and the vast masses of people in the avenue got well drenched. It was then understood that the inaugural ceremonies would take place in the Senate Chamber, instead of on the platform over the east part of the Capitol.

At the President's house and its vicinity there was quite a large crowd assembled to see the President and the procession depart. A strong police force was detailed to keep order in the crowd.

The fickle weather at half-past eleven changed again. The rain ceased, and there were signs of clearing up, with hopes of having the out-door spectacle at the Capitol after all.

At noon a special escort of United States Marshals to the President, headed by Marshals Lamon and Millward, and accompanied by a company of cavalry, rode through the avenue, surrounding the President's carriage, which they took to the Capitol, where the President had been engaged all the morning signing bills. He immediately entered the carriage and returned to the White House, where he took his place in the procession which was formed there.

The procession moved at 11.10 from the President's house. The head of it reached the Capitol in an hour.

The President rode in a close carriage. The house-tops were crowded, as were the sidewalks, and there was much cheering as the procession moved along the avenue.

A monitor, gaily decked with flags and manned with sailors, was in the line, and fired salutes at intervals.

The visiting Philadelphia fire companies attracted great attention by their beautifully adorned apparatus. Numerous bands were interspersed throughout the whole procession, and the line was one continual ring of music.

The procession was one hour in passing a given point, and the length was probably over a mile.

The streets were in an almost impassable condition, which made the display not as magnificent as it would have been, though it was exceedingly beautiful. One novel feature was the colored troops and Odd Fellows, with their band.

The Senate Chamber soon began to present an animated scene. In front of the Secretary's desk a seat was placed for Mr. Lincoln, or, as he is described in the programme, "The President of the United States, President elect." To the left of it were chairs for the Committee of Arrangements. On the right were seats for the ex-Presidents and Vice-Presidents, and the Judges of the Supreme Court. On the right of the latter were seats for the Diplomatic Corps. On the left of the chair were seats for the heads of departments. On the right and left of the main entrance were places for privileged persons.

The ladies of the families of the Diplomatic Corps occupied the gallery reserved for them on the east side of the Chamber, directly opposite the chair. The other galleries were reserved for ladies in general, and they soon filled all the available space, making a very gay appearance.

To the left of the chair were seats for members of the House and members elect, and these, as well as the Senators, came in rapidly till all the seats were filled. The entrance of the Diplomatic Corps, all in full court suits, made a sensation. So did that of the Justices of the Supreme Court in their black silk robes of office.

This being done, the President of the United States was ushered into the Senate, and took his seat for a brief period at the right of the Vice President.

The order of proceedings was then announced, and the chamber was slowly emptied, the crowd making its way towards the east portico.

Just at this moment the sun burst through the dense mass of clouds that had hung like a pall over the city all the morning, drenching everything with rain.

The clouds disappeared almost by a miracle, and heaven's azure canopy alone formed the roof of the great cathedral where the High Priest of Freedom was to be consecrated anew for his sublime mission.

Arriving at the east portico, the President elect took a seat provided for him, and the other distinguished persons filling the whole vast platform had places assigned to them. The President elect then advanced to the front, and Chief Justice Chase administered the oath of office, which the President pronounced in a clear, solemn voice, as follows:

"I do solemnly swear that I will faithfully execute the office of the President of the United States, and will, to the best of my ability, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States."

The President then delivered his Inaugural Address as follows:—

He held the written address in his hand, and read it in a clear and distinct voice, which could be heard by the entire assembly. The address occupied about ten minutes in its delivery, and was several times interrupted with applause.

INAUGURAL ADDRESS.

Fellow-countrymen:—At this second appearing to take the oath of the Presidential office, there is less occasion for an extended address than there was at the first. Then, a statement somewhat in detail of a course to be pursued seemed fitting and proper. Now, at the expiration of four years, during which public declarations have been constantly called forth on every point and phase of the great contest which still absorbs the attention and engrosses the energy of the nation, little that is new could be presented.

The progress of our arms, upon which all else chiefly depends, is as well known to the public as to myself, and it is, I trust, reasonably satisfactory and encouraging to all.

With high hopes for the future, no prediction in regard to it is ventured. On the occasion corresponding to this four years ago, all thoughts were anxiously directed to an impending civil war. All dreaded it. All sought to avert it.

While the inaugural address was being delivered from this place, devoted altogether to the saving of the Union without war, insurgent agents were in the city seeking to destroy it without war, seeking to dissolve the Union and divide the effects by negotiation.

Both parties deprecated war; but one of them would make war rather than let the nation survive, and the other would accept war rather than perish; and the war came. One-eighth of the whole population were colored slaves, not distributed generally over the Union, but localized in the Southern part of it.

These slaves constituted a peculiar and beneficial interest. All knew that this interest was somehow the cause of the war. To strengthen, perpetuate, and extend this interest was the object for which the insurgents would rend the Union even by war; while the government claimed no right to do more than to restrict the territorial enlargement of it.

Neither party expected for the war the magnitude nor the duration which it has already attained. Neither anticipated that the cause of the conflict might cease with or even before the conflict itself should cease. Each looked for an easier triumph, and a result less fundamental and astounding. Both read the same Bible and prayed to the same God, and each invoked His aid against the other. It may seem strange that any men should dare to ask a just God's assistance in wringing their bread from the sweat of other men's faces.

But let us judge not that we be not judged. The prayers of both could not be answered; that of neither has been answered fully. The Almighty has His own purposes. "Woe unto the world because of offences, for it must needs be that offences come; but woe to that man by whom the offence cometh." If we shall suppose that American slavery is one of those offences which, in the providence of God, must needs come, but which, having continued through His appointed time, He now wills to remove, and that He gives to both north and south this terrible war as the woe due to those by whom the offence came, shall we discern therein any departure from those Divine attributes which the believers in a loving God always ascribe to him? Fondly do we hope, fervently do we pray, that this mighty scourge of war may speedily pass away.

Yet if God wills that it continue until all the wealth piled by the bondman's two hundred and fifty years of unrequited toil shall be sunk, and until every drop of blood drawn with the lash shall be paid by another drawn with the sword, as was said three thousand years ago, so still it must be said, "the judgments of the Lord are true and righteous altogether."

With malice toward none, with charity for all, with firmness in the right, let us strive on to finish the work we are in; to bind up the nation's wounds; to care for him who shall have borne the battle, and for his widow and his orphan: to do all which may achieve and cherish a just and a lasting peace among ourselves and with all nations.

When the President had concluded, there was great cheering among the multitude. At the same moment grand salutes of one hundred guns were fired from various parts of the city, making a roar of artillery such as has never before been heard in Washington.

The President received the congratulations of the Chief Justice and many others on the platform. The procession re-formed and returned to the Senate Chamber. Soon afterwards the President and suite departed to their carriages, and the grand procession returned to the White House, being greeted with the congratulatory cheers of thousands along the avenue.

Guarding the Back Door.

NASHVILLE, March 2.

New life has been infused into the army here by the arrival of several thousand fresh troops.—Nearly every day for the past week there have arrived at this place two full regiments of new troops, and some days as many as three regiments have passed up the streets. These are mostly from Illinois and Indiana. The precise destination of this new army is not yet certain to outsiders, but it is certain that it is designed to augment General Thomas' army sufficiently to check any movement which may be made from the direction of Richmond.

General Thomas returned a day or two since from Eastport, where he has been, it is believed, to arrange for the future movements of his army.—Should the apprehension so strongly manifested here, result in Lee's cutting away from Richmond, and coming through East Tennessee, and thence west of the Mississippi river into Texas and Mexico, it is evident that to check him Thomas must concentrate his army at Chattanooga and Knoxville. "Things are working."

The expedition which the public has so long been expecting General Thomas would make through Alabama to Mobile, will not be made from Eastport. However, cheering news may be looked for from the neighborhood of Mobile in a short time.

Last evening the train from Chattanooga to this city was partially thrown from the track at Smyrna, by the breaking of a bridge. Quite a number were severely injured, and two or three killed.

There is scarcely a night but some one is killed in this city. The town is filled with murderers and black-legs, and it is not safe for a person to be out after dark. Night before last, and last night, three men were shot dead—one man while on his way for a physician to attend his wife in her confinement.

Mrs. H. S. Foote, wife of the rebel ex-Congressman, is here. She received the cold shoulder from the citizens, even among many of her old acquaintances, and it was with much difficulty she could procure a boarding place for herself and family, including the rebel "Hangman" himself; and only succeeded after much effort and solicitation among several boarding houses. This your correspondent knows, because she called to get board at the house at which he stops. When she read the report in the papers that her husband had embarked for Europe, she cried and felt much disappointment, because she expected him to follow her immediately to this place and remain. She remains very quiet and secluded.—Chicago Jour.

Fearful Volcanic Phenomena in the Pacific Island.

The Honolulu Commercial Advertiser gives the following account of the strange spectacle of the submerging and uprising of the island in the burning crater of Kilauea, in December last. The same phenomenon occurred in June last, with the difference that it then disappeared several days, and was restored by the spouting liquid lava:

I was at Kilauea on the 9th and 10th instant. There was much action in the great caldron of Halemeuma. Mother Pele was boiling up her rock soup with vehemence, as if preparing for a rain of young volcanoes. Besides this raging lake, I saw seven other fires at different points in the crater. One lake was boiling most intensely about a mile from the fountain lake in a northwesterly direction. The natives told me that a day or two previous to my arrival at Kilauea, a jagged cone of the size of a church, and forming an elevated island near the centre of the igneous lake became so undermined by the intense boiling of the fusion along its apparent base, that it fell over, and was submerged in the fiery abyss: but that, after a little time, it rose again, like a whale from the deep, and shook cataracts of molten minerals from its burning brow. In visiting a pulu station on the highlands, some fifteen miles from Kilauea, I passed many large pits and cone craters, most of them ancient and densely wooded, from 300 to 800 feet in height and depth. I spent a night near a beautiful pit crater called Napau, nearly circular, about 300 feet deep, a mile, perhaps, in diameter, and with a bottom of sand so smooth and hard that a regiment of cavalry might be reviewed there. One-eighth of a mile from this crater fissures are opened in the earth, out of which scalding steam and smoke have issued from time immemorial, and affording heat enough to cook for an army.

From North Carolina.

NEW YORK, March 10.

By the arrival of the Dudley Buck, which left Newbern Monday evening at six o'clock, we learn that up to the 4th inst. warm showers had been falling for a week, making the roads bad. It cleared off on Saturday night. The enemy had felled great numbers of trees across the roads and paths leading from Newbern to Kinston, which were being removed by the force advancing from Newbern, which force was within a short distance of Kinston.

Refugees arrived in Newbern state that Fayetteville, N. C., was in our possession last week, and that Sherman was within forty miles of Raleigh. Rebel soldiers were deserting in companies and in some cases by regiments. Some of them were returning to their homes. The people pay but little attention to the proclamation of Governor Vance calling to arms, and in most places in North Carolina the people go forth to meet Sherman with words of welcome, and are not particular about placing their stock and supplies out of his reach.

Quite a panic prevails among the negroes in North Carolina, since the announcement that they are to be compelled to fight in the rebel army.—The rebels are now gathering them up. A strong combination exists among the conservative slaveholders to resist the measure; some of whom are arming their slaves in order that they may be able to defy the rebel authorities and thus retain their servants, who exhibit a readiness to fight for their masters and their homes rather than for the Confederacy. Great numbers of negroes are flocking to Sherman's army.

The Carolina Campaign.

The Augusta Constitutionalist of the 17th ult., says the Fifteenth and Seventeenth Corps, with Gen. Sherman's command, has a baggage train three miles long. The Fifteenth Corps became drunk and pillaged Columbia, burning the entire length of Main street. Gen. Sherman ordered the pillagers and burners to be shot. Two or three hundred citizens left with the Yankees. Most of the people remaining are obliged to live in huts. Their condition is dreadful! Sherman left two hundred head of beef cattle for the sick and wounded, and gave arms to the citizens to protect themselves from negroes. Every article of subsistence was carried off—cellars, outbuildings, &c., being searched. The city was shelled furiously before taking possession.

The same paper says there are three thousand locomotives and cars penned up at Charlotte. It says Sherman will of course destroy this stock.—They were heavily laden with stores. The Southern Express Company saved all its valuables, but the mails have been lost everywhere.

A Charlotte correspondent of the Richmond Whig says Sherman's advance on Columbia was unexpected, sudden and surprising. It found all unprepared, and no one cool enough to do anything. When his guns were heard in the city, public officers for the first time began to think of removing the Government stores, when flanked out of their position on the opposite side of the Congaree. Then they began upon the work of sending off the stores, but the time was too short, and much was left. The worst feature of the whole scene was the plundering done by Wheeler's cavalry. This was done most systematically, as if they were trained to stealing.

☞The Ebensburg Alleghenian is down on what it terms an effort to "snake" a bill through the Legislature to create a "New Court" at Johnstown.

☞Gen. Grant reports that since the beginning of the campaign last May, 17,000 deserters have come into our lines from Lee's army alone.

LOCAL ITEMS.

THE ROBBERIES.—Last week we alluded to the probable discovery of the persons who, for some time past, have been engaged in abstracting goods from freight cars while at this station. The officer in charge of the Transportation Department of the P. R. R. has been much annoyed, within the past year, by these depredations, but was unable to detect the guilty parties. That those engaged in the robberies were employees of the Company and carried car keys, with which they opened and closed the cars, there could be no doubt, but all the expedients resorted to, in order to detect them, were unavailing. "Murder will out," and so will other crimes. It appears that two of the women who were concerned in the robberies, had a disagreement, and during a dispute implicated each other, in the hearing of other persons. This furnished a clue, an officer was put on the track, and Bishop Cozzens and wife, and Norval Hawk and wife were arrested. A search of their premises was made and some of the missing goods found.—After the arrest, Cozzens implicated the family of John J. Burkholder, residing at Blair Furnace.—We may state here that Mrs. Cozzens and Mrs. Hawk are daughters of Mr. Burkholder. A preliminary search of Burkholder's premises was made, and sufficient evidence of his complicity with the robberies discovered to warrant the arrest of the entire family, consisting of husband, wife, daughter and two sons. A further search of the premises was then made which resulted in the recovery of some $3,000 worth of goods of every description, which were secreted about the house and barn. The parties were brought before Esquire Humes and held to bail in the sum of $7,500 to appear at next term of court. Whether all who have been placed under bail were really concerned in the transactions remains to be substantiated before the court, and we forbear comment thereon for the present.

FOUND DEAD.—The dead body of a young colored woman named Elizabeth Snowden, familiarly known as Lizzie Irons, was found on the hill north of town, on last Thursday night. She had left her mother's residence in the evening to attend night school, and not returning in due time, search was made and she was found in the manner stated above. A Coroner's inquisition was held the next morning, and a post mortem examination made by Drs. G. W. Smith and W. C. Osterloh, which showed very clearly she died of hypertrophy of the heart. The verdict of the jury was in accordance therewith. The deceased was about thirty-seven years of age, followed the occupation of a seamstress, and was much esteemed by her friends and the ladies of this place for her many excellent qualities.—Hollidaysburg Standard.

CHILD BURNED.—A little child, at the National Hotel, was seriously burned by its clothes taking fire, one day last week. It was standing in front of the stove lighting a piece of pine, and by this means communicated the flames to its clothing, burning the front part of its body and face in a frightful manner. At first its life was despaired of, but it is now improving, and hopes are entertained of its recovery.

ANOTHER.—We learn that a little child of Mr. —— Schaffer, of this borough, was severely, tho' not dangerously, scalded, on Friday last, by pulling a kettle of boiling water off the stove. It is, we understand, recovering rapidly.—Huntingdon Journal.

OIL COMPANY.—An oil company, under the title of the "Oil Creek and Pit Hole Oil Company," is about to be organized in this place, and in the course of a week or two the stock will be in market. The Company owns twenty acres of land in fee simple, on Pit Hole Creek, and have two leases of one acre each on said creek, and two leases of one acre each on the M'Clintock farm, on Oil Creek. The stock of the Company is already in demand, and from the representations made by those acquainted with the business, we are inclined to think it will prove a good investment.

RETURNED.—It gives us pleasure to note that the change made in the discipline of the M. E. Church, at the last General Conference, allowing preachers in charge of circuits or stations to be returned the third year, has been applied in the case of Rev. W. R. Mills, at this station, and we are to have his services for another year. Although the membership of his charge did not specially ask a change from the two year to the three year rule, they will, nevertheless rejoice over its application in the present instance.

BRITISH RULE IN INDIA.—Rev. W. W. Hicks, late missionary to India, will lecture on the above subject in the Methodist Church, in this place, on Thursday Evening next. Having resided in India for some three or four years, and witnessed the workings of British rule, he can give a fair account of it. From our knowledge of the lecturer, we can promise our readers an entertainment such as is not often presented. Price of tickets of admission 50 cents.

NEW COMPANY.—Daniel Shock, Esq., one of our County Commissioners, has resigned his place in the Board and gone into the military service as the Captain of a new company, which he has recruited within the past few days. Capt. S. is a first rate man, and will no doubt make a first rate officer. We also understand that Robt. Waring, Esq., another of our Commissioners, goes as a Lieutenant in Capt. Shock's company.—Standard.

FUNNY.—The man who smoked in bed on his wedding night was sarcastically informed by his bride, that "no gentleman ever lighted his cigar at the torch of Hymen." "My dear Madam," said he, "excuse me; I buy my cigars at the National Grocery, and they are so good I can't help it!" Of course she excused him, and it was at once agreed that Russ & Postlewait should henceforth supply the new family with groceries. Sensible conclusion.

NEW GOODS.—Our friend Harry Campbell, of East Altoona, notwithstanding the "selling off" fever which prevails so extensively amongst his fellow merchants, has had the courage to lay in a heavy stock of Boots, Shoes, &c., for ladies, gents and children, and a choice lot of Groceries for family use, which he pledges his word to sell as cheap as the cheapest. Go and see.

APPOINTMENT.—Jos. Irvin, Esq., of this place, has been appointed County Commissioner to fill the unexpired term of Capt. Shock, resigned.—An excellent selection.—Standard.

FOR SALE.—A building lot, on Clandia street, West Altoona. Terms moderate. For particulars inquire at the "Green Corner." [Mar.4.3t.

DYSPEPSIA.—What every body says must be true. We have heard Dr. Strickland's Tonic spoken of so frequently by those who have been benefitted by it, that at last we are compelled to make it known to the public that we really believe it effects a cure in every case: therefore, we say to those who are suffering with Dyspepsia or Nervous Debility, to go to their Druggist and get a bottle of Dr. Strickland's Tonic.

DR. TOBIAS'
VENETIAN LINIMENT.
A CERTAIN CURE FOR PAINS AND ACHES, and warranted superior to any other. Croup it positively cures; relief is absolutely sure immediately it is used. Mothers remember this, and arm yourselves with a bottle without delay. Croup is a disease which gives no notice, frequently attacking the child in the dead hour of night: before a physician can be summoned it may be too late. Remember, the Venetian Liniment never fails. Price 25 and 50 cents a bottle. Sold by all Druggists. Office, 56 Cortlandt Street, New-York.

U. S. 7-30 LOAN.
By authority of the Secretary of the Treasury, the undersigned has assumed the General Subscription Agency for the sale of United States Treasury Notes, bearing seven and three tenths per cent. interest, per annum, known as the SEVEN-THIRTY LOAN.
These Notes are issued under date of August 15th, 1864, and are payable three years from that time, in currency, or are convertible at the option of the holder into
U. S. 5-20 Six per cent.
GOLD-BEARING BONDS
These Bonds are now worth a premium of nine per cent. including gold interest from Nov., which makes the actual profit on the 7-30 loan, at current rates, including interest, about ten per cent. per annum, besides its exemption from State and municipal taxation, which adds from one to three per cent. more, according to the rate levied upon other property. The interest is payable semi-annually by coupons attached to each note, which may be cut off and sold to any bank or banker.
The interest amounts to

One cent. per day on a				$50 note.
Two cents	"	"	"	$100 "
Ten	"	"	"	$500 "
20	"	"	"	$1000 "
$1	"	"	"	$5000 "

Notes of all denominations named will be promptly furnished upon receipt of subscriptions. This is
THE ONLY LOAN IN MARKET

GREAT POPULAR LOAN OF THE PEOPLE.
Less than $200,000,000 remain unsold, which will probably be disposed of within the next 60 or 90 days, when the notes will undoubtedly command a premium, as has uniformly been the case on closing the subscriptions to other Loans.
In order that citizens of every town and section of the country may be afforded facilities for taking the loan, the National Banks, State Banks, and Private Bankers throughout the country have generally agreed to receive subscriptions at par. Subscribers will select their own agents, in whom they have confidence, and who only are to be responsible for the delivery of the notes for which they receive orders.

JOHNSON'S RHEUMATIC COMPOUND AND BLOOD PURIFIER!

THIS GREAT INTERNAL REMEDY

Is the best medicine ever offered to the public. For the effectual cure of Rheumatism, Gout, Neuralgia, Dyspepsia and as a Blood Purifier it has no equal, for all diseases arising from an impure state of the blood, such as Scrofula or King's Evil, Scald Head, Tetter, Ring Worm, Female Complaints, and all Breakouts on the face or body. The vast number of diseases which formerly have been treated for those diseases, were merely temporary in their effects, and of doubtful virtue, but

THE RHEUMATIC COMPOUND

Searches the source of all trouble, and effectually banishes the disease from the system, by its unfailing action on the blood. We advise one and all to give it a trial, and become satisfied of its wonderful power.

☞ Read the following testimonials of men and women of unquestionable character:

MR. JOHNSON:—Dear Sir:—This is to certify, that I was badly crippled with Chronic Rheumatism for eighteen or twenty years, part of that time I was not able to go about. I tried all the rheumatic remedies that I could hear of, but found no relief until I tried your Rheumatic Compound and Blood Purifier. I used three-fourths of a bottle of it, and it cured me sound and well. My wife also was afflicted with the same disease, and a small portion of it cured her. I am nearly seventy years of age; and it is over four years since I was cured, and I have not been troubled with it since. It affords me great pleasure to furnish you with this certificate, so that you can relieve others who are afflicted with rheumatism. to me.

I remain yours truly,

ANDREW ARMSTRONG.

No. 19 James Street, Allegheny City.

ALLEGHENY, May 9d, 1861.

MR. A. JOHNSON:—Dear Sir: My wife was taken bad with inflammatory Rheumatism in March last. She was very much swollen and the pain she suffered was severe; she was confined to her bed. I was advised to try your Rheumatic compound and Blood Purifier, so I got a bottle of it, and before the half of it was used she was entirely well. The cure is a perfect one; I never saw such medicine. She had only taken three doses of it till the swelling and pain began to abate. All your medicine wants is to be known in order to give it success.

Yours affectionately, JAMES McALISTER.

My residence is No. 126 Cherry alley, where my wife can be seen by any person doubting the truth of the above.

PITTSBURGH, April 14th, 1864.

CANONSBURGH, WASHINGTON Co., April 12th, 1864.

MR. A. JOHNSON:—Dear Sir: I write to say a word or two in favor of your Rheumatic Compound and Blood Purifier. I have been afflicted with Rheumatism more or less, for over twenty years. A great part of that time I was very bad. I tried a great many rheumatic nostrums but received very little benefit from them. On the first of last January, I was so bad that I was entirely helpless. I could not write my own name; I could only lie on one side. While reading in the United Presbyterian paper I saw a notice of your Rheumatic Compound and Blood Purifier. I was afraid at first that it might be like other remedies that I have tried, but as it was in a religious paper I concluded to give it a trial. So I got a bottle, used it, and found myself a little better. I used three bottles in all, and I am happy to say that I have neither pain or ache. I am sixty-eight years of age, I can lie on either side, travel for half a day at a time and not be fatigued. I believe your Rheumatic Compound and Blood Purifier to be the best medicine ever offered to the public for the cure of rheumatism. If you think this note, with my name to it, will be of any use to you or a suffering public, you are at liberty to use them.

Yours with respect, JOHN I. LOCKHART.

MR. JOHNSON:—Dear Sir: My wife had been afflicted with neuralgia for a long time. It commenced on her in 1858. She was so bad at that time she was obliged to be in bed about four days in the week. She tried everything that we heard of that was recommended for that disease but she got no relief; then we tried medical advice but it done no good. At last I thought she must die, as I thought there was no cure. But in the spring of 1863, I believe in March, a daughter of Mr. Pickey's, who lives in the Court with me, said, "Why dont you get Johnson's Rheumatic Compound and Blood Purifier. It cured my father of the rheumatism which he was a cripple, and the doctor could do nothing for him." So I got a bottle of your medicine, and before my wife had the half of it used, she was cured. It is now more than a year since, and she has not been troubled with it since. This I can testify to, on oath. Yours, LEWIS HILKE,

CHEROKEE REMEDY

—AND—

CHEROKEE INJECTION

Compounded from Barks, Roots & Leaves.

CHEROKEE REMEDY, the great Indian Diuretic cures all diseases of the various organs, such as Incontinence of the Urine, Inflamation of the Bladder, Inflamation of the Kidneys, Stone in the Bladder, Stricture, Gravel, Gleet, Gunorrhœa, and especially recommended in those cases of Fluor Albus (or Whites in females) where all the old nauseous medicines have failed.

It is prepared in a highly concentrated form, the dose only being from one to two teaspoonfuls three times per day.

It is diuretic and alterative in its action; purifying and cleansing the blood causing it to flow in all of its original purity and vigor; thus removing from the system all pernicious causes which have induced disease.

CHEROKEE INJECTION is intended as an ally or assistant to the Cherokee Remedy, and should be used in conjunction with that medicine in all cases of Gonorhœa, Gleet, Fluor Albus or Whites. Its effect are healing soothing and demulcent: removing all scalding, heat, chordee and pain, instead of the burning and almost unendurible pain that is experienced with nearly all the cheap quack Injections.

By use of the Cherokee Remedy and Cherokee Injection—the two medicines at the same time—all improper discharges are removed, and the weakened organs are speedily restored to full vigor and strength.

For full particulars get our pamphlet from any drug store in the country, or write to us and we will mail free to any address, a full treatise.

DYSPEPSIA, DYSPEPSIA, DYSPEPSIA,

I, ELIZABETH BRANSON, of Brandywine, Del., formerly of Old Chester, Del., do certify that, for one year and a half I suffered everything but death from that awful disease called Dyspepsia. My whole system was prostrated with weakness and nervous debility; I could not digest my food; it I ate even a cracker or the smallest amount of food, it would return just as I swallowed it; I became so costive in my bowels that I would not have a passage in less than four and often eight days; under this immense suffering, my mind seemed entirely to give way. I had dreadful horror and evil forebodings. I thought everybody hated me and I hated everybody; I could not bear my husband nor my own children, everything appeared to be horror stricken to me; I had no ambition to do anything; I lost all my love of family and home; I would ramble and wander from place to place, but could not be contented; I felt that I was doomed to hell, and that there was no heaven for me, and was often tempted to commit suicide, so near was my whole nervous system destroyed, and also my mind. From that awful complaint, Dyspepsia, I met my much dreaded foe to have me placed in Dr. Kirkbride's Hospital, West Philadelphia; I remained there nine weeks, and though I was a little better, but in a few days my dreadful complaint was raging as bad as ever.—Hearing of the wonderful cures performed by Dr. Wishart's Great American Dyspepsia Pills and his treatment for Dyspepsia, my husband called on Dr. Wishart and stated my case to him. He said he had no doubt he could cure me. So in three days after I called and placed myself under the Doctor's treatment, and in two weeks I began to digest my food, and felt that my disease was fast giving way, and I continued to recover for about three months, and at the present time I enjoy perfect health of body and mind, and I feel sincerely return my thanks to a merciful God and Dr. Wishart, and to his Great American Dyspepsia Pills and Pine Tree Tar Cordial that saved me from an insane Asylum, a premature grave. All persons suffering with Dyspepsia are at liberty to call on me or write, or I am willing to do all the good I can for, suffering humanity. ELIZABETH BRANSON, Brandywine, Del., formerly of Old Chester, Delaware county, Pa.

DYSPEPSIA! DYSPEPSIA!

I, MOSES TOBIN, of Cheltenham, Montgomery county, Pa., have suffered for more than one year, everything but death itself from that awful disease called Dyspepsia. I employed in that time five of the most eminent physicians in Philadelphia. They did all they could for me with medicine and cupping, but still I was no better. I then went to the Pennsylvania University, in order to place myself in reach of the best medical talents in the country, but their medicines failed to do me any good, and others have I wished for death to relieve me of my sufferings, but seeing Dr. Wishart's advertisement in the Philadelphia Bulletin, I determined to try once more, but with little faith. I called on Dr. Wishart, and told him if I could have died I would not have troubled him, and that I was only suffering to please him. The Doctor assured me if he failed to cure me of Dyspepsia it would be the first case in two years, so I put myself under his treatment, and although for months vomiting nearly all I ate, my stomach swelled with wind, and filled with pain beyond description, I bought a box of his Dyspepsia Pills and followed them as directed, and in ten days I could eat as hearty a meal as any person in the State of Pennsylvania, and in thirty days was a well man. I invite any person suffering as I was to call and see me, and I will relate my suffering and the great cure I received. I would say to all Dyspeptics, everywhere, that Dr. Wishart is, I believe, the only person on the earth that can cure Dyspepsia with any degree of certainty.

A POSITIVE CURE FOR DYSPEPSIA.

HEAR WHAT MR. JOHN H. BADCOCK SAYS,

No. 1025 Olive Street,
Philadelphia, January 22d, 1863.

DR. WISHART—Sir:—It is with much pleasure that I am now able to inform you that, by the use of your great American Dyspepsia Pills, I have been entirely cured of that most distressing complaint, Dyspepsia. I had been grievously afflicted for the last twenty-eight years, and for ten years of that time have not been free from its pain one week at a time. I have had it in its worst form and have dragged on a most miserable existence—in pain day and night. Every kind of food that I ate filled me with wind and pain; it mattered not how light, or how small the quantity. A continued belching was sure to follow.—I had no appetite for any kinds of meats whatever, and my distress was so great for several months before I heard of your Pills, that I frequently wished for death. I had taken everything that I had heard of for Dyspepsia, without receiving any benefit; but on your Pills being recommended to me by one who had been cured by them, I concluded to give them a trial, although I had no faith in them. To my astonishment, I found myself getting better before I had taken one quarter of a box, I am now a well man, and can eat anything I wish, and enjoy a hearty meal three times a day, without inconvenience from anything I eat or drink. If you think proper you are at liberty to make this public and refer to me. I will cheerfully give all desired information to any one who may call on me.

Yours, respectfully, JOHN H. BADCOCK.

DYSPEPSIA! DYSPEPSIA!

I, Samuel D. Haven, have been a great sufferer with Chronic Dyspepsia and Inflamation of the Kidneys for three years. I had employed three or four of the most eminent physicians of Philadelphia, also of Burlington co., N. J. They did all for me they could but all to no purpose. I was constantly filled with awful pain and distress, and with constant belching of wind and sour acid. My tongue was covered with a white coating of mucus, and was dreadfully sore! Oh! I oftentimes wished for death to relieve me of my sufferings for I had lost all hope of ever being well again. I made it a subject of prayer to God that he would direct me to some physician or medicine that would cure me. I was told to read an advertisement of Dr. Wishart's in the Philadelphia Ledger, of a great cure made upon Mr. John Badcock, of 1029 Olive street, Philadelphia, by the great American Dyspepsia Pills. I went to the Doctor's Office, and placed myself under his treatment, and told him if he failed to cure me it would be the last effort I would make. It has been six weeks since I commenced the use of his medicine, and I am now a well man, free from all pain and distress, and can eat three hearty meals a day with comfort, and feel perfectly well. Dr. Wishart, I want you to publish my case, as I want every poor dyspeptic suffering as I was, to call on me, and I will tell them of the great cure I have received from your invaluable medicine.
